Applying the tariff

The performing rights licence for music must be obtained in advance

Interval music

The licence covers minor public performance of mechanically reproduced background music immediately related to the stage performance (e.g. interval music) in the performance venue or in a foyer leading to it.

Mechanical reproduction

The licence allows the customer to make one recording for use in the performance. Such a recording may consist of music specifically recorded for the purpose or music from a pre-existing recording owned by the customer. Such a recording shall not be used for any other purpose. The licence does not allow what is known as the premiere recording. (See General Operating Instructions / Premiere recording and recording a work in parts)
