

License for live streaming as of 1 September 2021

*PLEASE NOTE! A license from Teosto is not required for live streaming that is free of charge for consumers using platforms already licensed by Teosto*, provided that the live stream is not recorded for later viewing. Furthermore, private persons do not need a license for publishing recordings via the aforementioned platforms.*

- The license gives you the right to live stream gigs, concerts and other events that are primarily about music.
- A license is required for live streaming any gig, concert or musical event that is subject to a charge to consumers.
- A license is also required for live streaming gigs, concerts or musical events that are free of charge to consumers if the live streaming occurs via a platform other than a platform licensed by Teosto (such as Vimeo, Zoom, Teams, etc.). The platforms licensed by Teosto include YouTube, Facebook and Instagram.
- The fee includes the right to retain a live stream recording for on-demand viewing for 30 days. If the recording is available for more than 30 days, the Minor Media License, subject to a monthly fee, is required.
- The revenue and musical information of events streamed live must be reported to Teosto using the report form (see the page below). The reports must be submitted by the 15th of the following month at the latest.

**The platforms licensed by Teosto (the platform manages the licenses and reporting on behalf of the customer) include Youtube, Facebook, Instagram, G Livelab, SemiLive, Vanha Navetta and Keikalla.fi*
